

AXTAL Products successfully presented at the Electronica exhibition

This year AXTAL could successfully present its products and services for the first time at the “Electronica” in Munich, the world largest electronic exhibition.

The four exhibition days were fully packed with meetings. In a large number of personal talks with customers from Europe and abroad, AXTAL CONSULTING could present its services in detail.

AXTAL’s offer of application assistance and qualification testing of crystals, oscillators and filters as an independent laboratory found a wide-spread interest.

AXTAL CONSULTING as a design house for advanced Frequency Control Products - particularly for oscillators – this was the subject of a number of meetings with manufacturers and users. For our customer, this means outsourcing of Design & Development projects – from the definition of spec and targets to the finished product including full documentation, ready for transfer into production.

The first appearance of AXTAL on this exhibition was a complete success. It confirms that AXTAL offers the right portfolio of products, which serves an important market niche.

Lobbach, November 2002